

Faculty rejects SimCom proposal in secret ballot

In an 89 to 66 vote by secret ballot, the Collegiate Faculty rejected an amendment to its bylaws which would have required new faculty members to "pass both the expressive and receptive parts of the SimCom test two consecutive times to demonstrate competency in the simultaneous method."

The vote followed discussion questioning the validity of the test, faculty communication skills and their impact on the welfare of graduate and undergraduate students and the amendment's possible influence on candidates for tenure. The amendment failed to get the 2/3 vote necessary to amend the bylaws. It is unlikely the issue will be voted on again during this academic year.

Other business of the November meeting included a report by John Schuchman, vice president for Academic Affairs. Speaking for the College Central Administration, Schuchman announced that the fiscal year '84 budget of $56 million had not passed in Congress. A cap of $52 million had been signed. In mid-November, he explained, legislation on continuing spending levels had included a $2 million supplement. The resulting $54 million total means that President Johns' office will try for additional supplemental legislation in March. Schuchman assured the faculty that a major priority of the administration is salary increases.

Schuchman also reported that Johns has asked that the College reduce administration positions where possible. As an example, he pointed to the vice president for Institutional Advancement

Outreach program gets high marks

Schools associated with the Affiliated Schools Program (ASP), the people-to-people outreach effort of Pre-College Programs, gave the project a high rating, according to a survey recently completed by a private researcher.

ASP acts both as a catalyst "energizing the school to pull together its own resources to bring about change or solve a problem" and as a critical source of information and support to schools with more limited resources, according to the survey, which consisted of in-depth telephone interviews with 10 superintendents and six assistant superintendents and principals of member schools.

ASP is designed to offer technical assistance and consultant services to schools and programs serving hearing impaired students in Delaware, Maryland, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia. The survey was conducted as one way for Pre-College Programs to assess the effectiveness of the program and to identify future needs of the schools it serves.

Essentially, participating schools give ASP high marks for consistently providing services and assistance of high quality which are researched so they address real needs.

Planning assistance in the areas of reading, language arts, career education, sex education and dormitory programming was rated particularly effective. "It got us off the drawing board and into the classroom much quicker," commented one principal.

College Council discusses plans of policy changes

At the monthly College Council meeting Nov. 22, members discussed proposed changes in personnel-related college policies and reviewed the first draft of guidelines proposed for the Council.

Only nine Council members attended the November meeting. While that was not enough for a quorum, W. Lloyd Johns, chairman of the Council, said that, "Since one of the main purposes of the Council is to share thoughts (on College policy) we should not cancel the meeting." (Eleven members are needed to take a vote.)

Council vice chairman Jim Barnes presented several changes in personnel-related College policies that will be presented to the Central Administration and the Board of Trustees for approval. Barnes recommended the College delete a separate policy concerning job posting because that policy is already included in another College policy. Barnes also recommended that the voluntary collection of Equal Employment Opportunity/Affirmative Action Policy information from applicants for positions at Gallaudet as mandated by federal, executive and legislative orders be included in College policy.

Council members also discussed the proposed change in the College's policy for tuition assistance for employees' children. It was recommended that the total amount of tuition assistance employees' children can receive be increased to $7,500 per family, with no family receiving more than $1,875 per year under the plan. If the Board approves, any faculty or

Gallaudet Day ceremonies and activities set for Dec. 9

On Friday, Dec. 9, Gallaudet College will honor the memory of Thomas Hopkins Gallaudet on the 196th anniversary of his birth. Gallaudet was the founder of the first permanent school for deaf children in the United States.

The traditional Gallaudet Day ceremonies will be held from 11 a.m. to noon in Elstad Auditorium. A program will also be held at 11 a.m. in the gymnasium at the Northwest Campus.

The Gallaudet Day ceremonies will include presentations by faculty and students and the laying of a wreath at the Thomas Hopkins Gallaudet and Alice Cogswell statue in front of Chapel Hall. The invocation will be given by the Rev. Otto Berg, after which Mathematics professor Leon Auerbach will make introductory remarks. Two College students will give a biography of Gallaudet and another student will sign a song. The presidents of the Student Body Government and Senior Class will lay the wreath at the statue, after which Dr. Johns will speak.

During the day, a collection of items related to T.H. Gallaudet from the Gallaudet Archives will be on display at the Learning Center.

Gallaudet Day is being held during Deaf Heritage Week, Dec. 4-10. A number of activities have been scheduled both on and off campus during the week.

The Northwest Community Relations Council will sponsor two programs on Dec. 7. During the morning, a program entitled "An Orientation to Deaf Awareness" will be offered to students at Shepherd Elementary School. At 7:30 that evening, films and a panel discussion on deafness will be presented to the community at Memorial Hall. Panel members will include college faculty members, staff and students. In addition, a display will be set up at Memorial Hall.

Off-campus activities include the following:

- A deaf-talk marathon Wednesday, Dec. 7 from noon to 9 p.m. at the Martin Luther King Memorial Library at 901 G Street, NW. For details, call 727-1186 (voice) or 727-2255 (TDD).

- A showing of "You'd Be Surprised," a 1926 silent film in which noted deaf landscape painter and actor Granville Remond performs. The film

Library Bits & Pieces

The deafness collection

by Carolyn Jones

Many people are using the materials catalogued in the library's deafness collection. That's just great in the librarian's eyes, but it's not so great when you, O best beloved librarian patron, cannot find a copy of a desired book to check out and read for your homework. Do not despair. There is a way out of your dilemma.

First, copies of deaf books are locked away in a special room and constitute a protected collection of research materials. We find it necessary to provide this security since many deaf books go out of print quickly and cannot be replaced if anything happens to all of our copies. Duplicate copies are put out for circulation but these first copies may not be checked out by anyone. Aha! Then how can you use them?

At the Information Desk, fill out a yellow request slip for each book you wish to read and put the request slips into the container on the desk. At 10 a.m., 3 p.m. and 8 p.m., the librarian will get the requested books and leave them at the Central Desk for you. Please note: while you leave the slips at the Information Desk, you get the books at the Central Desk. You cannot take the books out of the library but, at least, you have a copy to read. And so, O best beloved library patron, you may read happily ever after and make straight A's since you will always have your homework done.

position which was eliminated. In addition, the Central Administration has been reduced in size. The team is now composed of Schuchman, vice president for Academic Affairs; Doin Hicks, vice president for Research; Tom Mayes, vice president for Public Service; Jerry Lee, vice president for Business Administration; and Merv Garretson, special assistant to the president. The position of vice president for Pre-College is no longer included in Central Administration. Bob Davilla, who holds that job, will now report to Schuchman for this year. Schuchman said this alteration means that Academic Affairs will be able to look "at all instructional programs when considering revisions." This change will "benefit many of us who will have an increased opportunity to be involved in these programs," Schuchman told the faculty.

In the matters of academic course offerings, Comparative Poetics-ASL and English was approved as a new course offering and will appear in the catalogue as both an undergraduate and graduate course.

Deaf Studies had been changed in title to Deaf Culture in America and will carry no prerequisite, as will Introduction to American Studies.

And in a majority vote, the faculty eliminated Requirement E of the certification of completion of preparatory studies. Discussion showed that this requirement made it difficult to enable preparatory students to take the individualized course loads that they need to build their academic skills.

The faculty concluded the meeting by voting that there be no meeting in December and that the first meeting of 1984 be set at the discretion of Catherine Ingold, chairman of the Collegiate Faculty.

Institute on Aging

The National Institute on Aging is accepting applications for research projects intended to identify changes in the social environment—at work, in the household or in the community—that may improve the health and effective functioning of middle-aged or older persons.

Research projects should focus on social influences in three areas: work, the household and the community. Projects might deal with the effect of training programs on elderly workers' learning of new skills, structuring of work roles to accommodate older workers with particular disabilities or health problems, or how informal care systems can operate most effectively to maintain frail older people in their homes.

NIA has established March 1, July 1, and November 1 as the annual deadlines for applications for research project grants and new investigator awards under this program. Applications for other types of grants, including postdoctoral fellowships and program grants, are due February 1, June 1, and October 1 each year.

For further information, contact the Office of Sponsored Research or Behavioral Science Research, National Institute on Aging, Building 31C, 4C32, Bethesda, Maryland 20205, 496-3136.

MSSD hosts playwriting workshop

by Joni Johns

Hopeful of a spring debut at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, selected students at the Model Secondary School for the Deaf spent two days last week germinating ideas for their own plays as part of the first National Integrated Young Playwrights Project.

The National Committee, Arts with the Handicapped (NCAH), the project's sponsor, chose MSSD and five other schools across the country to be model sites hosting playwriting workshops under the direction of professionals active in the traditional Young Playwrights Festival competition of the Foundation of the dramatists Guild.

To encourage playwriting as a cultural and learning experience for disabled young people, NCAH as a cultural and learning experience for disabled young people, NCAH this year adapted that competition into the Integrated Project. Entries are required to address some aspect of disability in contemporary society. The contest is open to both disabled and non-disabled students between the ages of 12 and 18.

The winning script will be produced at the Kennedy Center during this spring's National Very Special Arts Festival, NCAH's 10th anniversary celebration of disabled children and their accomplishments in the arts. The May 1984 event will be based on campus at Gallaudet.

Shelly Raffle, a professional interpreter and director from New York City, who will also be guest-directing Gallaudet's upcoming production of "Sweeney Todd," led last week's workshop activities at MSSD.

Raffle and the students spent the morning of Nov. 29 discussing the fundamentals of live theatre. They devoted that afternoon to creating a scene, scripting the dialogue and reading it through.

Original writing was done in American Sign Language, with translation to English completed afterwards, according to MSSD drama instructor Tim McCarty.

To be considered for the competition, plays must be in the hands of NCAH before January 1.

GCAA meeting set

The D.C. Chapter of the Gallaudet College Alumni Association will hold its annual get-together to usher in the holiday season Wednesday, Dec. 7 from 7 to 9 p.m. in 'Ole Jim.'

There will be a cash bar and entertainment will be provided by Ray Parks and Clayton Valli. Parks, formerly with the NTD, is currently director of Student Life at MSSD and Valli is an ASL poet and a Linguistics graduate student at Gallaudet.

The donation requested for the get-together is $2.

Proceeds will go to needy Kendall Demonstration Elementary School families so that they may enjoy a good holiday dinner.

staff member with continuous employment at Gallaudet for five years or more would be eligible. Temporary employees and those under collective bargaining agreements are not included under this policy.

Council members also discussed the suggested guidelines for the Council submitted by Johns. A second draft with suggested changes will be ready for review at the next meeting.

When asked about renovations at House 1, Johns told the Council he and Mrs. Johns would not be able to move in until possibly next summer. He said the needed work on the historic building has not yet begun. For that reason, the College's annual holiday party hosted by the President and Mrs. Johns will be held Dec. 14 from 10 a.m. to noon and 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. in the EMG building. A reception for students will be held Dec. 10 from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. in the 'Ole Jim'.

Because of the holidays, there will be no Council meeting this month. The next meeting is scheduled for Jan. 18 at 4 p.m. in Room 60 of the Learning Center. Anyone who wants to bring an issue before the Council should contact the Office of the President at x5005.

Advocacy Notes

Our deaf-blind population by Merv Garretson

Rehabilitation and Education Experts, Inc. (REDEX) has completed a year-long study of deaf-blind people and their needs. The report, commissioned by the Office of Special Education and Rehabilitation Services (OSERS), notes that deaf-blind people in the United States have made substantial gains in recent years, but still face large areas of unmet or inadequately met needs.

The present population of deaf-blind persons in the U.S. is estimated at 734, 275 with the breakdown as follows:

- Profoundly deaf-blind—41,859
- Deaf and severely visually impaired—25,489
- Blind and severely hearing impaired—357,818
- Severely hearing and visually impaired—309,117

The report makes a number of recommendations, including the need for an annual census of the deaf-blind population, continued federal support of educational programs for deaf-blind children and youth (including extension of the age limit to 25), and the need to establish parent education programs for those with deaf-blind children. Each state is urged to coordinate deaf-blind services at a decision-making level within their hierarchy of social services and to establish vision and hearing conservation programs, especially for those who already have sensory impairments.

Research funds should be made available to identify, create, and evaluate new methods and new devices to compensate for deafness and blindness. The report also urges a federal program of job development and placement to supplement the efforts of state DVR's and commissions for the blind.

Increased attention should be given to independent and alternate living programs for deaf-blind adults, with increased federal support for recreational and other services to this population. One of the most significant recommendations of the entire report is to seek the assistance of deaf-blind persons themselves in planning all programs directed at serving them.

As a member of the National Advisory Committee of the Helen Keller National Center in Sands Point, NY, I recently attended two days of meetings and observation at this unique service center for deaf-blind youth and adults. At this time, with a federal budget of $3.7 million, the Center has 136 employees serving 37 on-site clients, providing research on assistive devices, providing training for workers with the deaf-blind in all parts of the United States, developing community education materials and coordinating an affiliated network of programs serving deaf-blind children and adults.

One of the problems reported to the advisory committee was that some airlines refuse to permit deaf-blind persons to travel alone. U.S. Air recently adopted a policy permitting a deaf-blind person to board a plane alone, providing he is able to communicate with flight attendants and others.

Gallaudet's hearing-vision impaired program is under the direction of Arthur Roehrig, who is himself deaf-blind and a graduate of the College. Doin Hicks, vice president for Research, and Wanda Hicks, a special services specialist at MSSD, are both well-versed in the area of deaf-blindness.

Two new health plans now offered

Open Season, the time of year when all permanent employees can enroll in or change health benefits plans, will continue through Dec. 9.

The College this year is offering two new health plans—CHOICE and Maryland Individual Practice Association. Both are pre-paid plans that provide or arrange for health care by designated plan physicians, hospitals and other health care officials located in particular geographic areas.

Employees wanting more information about either of the new plans can review available materials in Room 7 or B-19 of College Hall.

Enrollments and changes made during Open Season will go into effect in January 1984.

Bisonettes begin season with wins

The women's basketball team began the season Nov. 11 with a lopsided 87 to 17 victory over Goucher College and on Nov. 15, the Bisonettes trounced Wilson College 84 to 15.

Head coach Kitty Baldrige has eight veterans and two newcomers this year and is hoping for a good season. "We have a much tougher schedule coming up," said Kitty. "Both Goucher and Wilson have some problems this year but we will face some very strong competition as the season progresses."

The Bisonettes faced Notre Dame and York College in their next two outings and won both—defeating Notre Dame 77 to 73 and York 85 to 72.

With a 4-0 record, Gallaudet hosted an Invitational Tournament during the Thanksgiving break and beat Delaware Valley State 92 to 35 in the first game. In the championship game, Gallaudet lost to Messiah College, 72 to 70.

After six games, the Bisonettes are averaging 81 points per game while holding their opponents to an average of 47 points.

Meanwhile, the men's basketball team, as of Nov. 25, was looking for its first win of the season after losing the first four games. The Bison lost to Averette, 92 to 64; Johns Hopkins, 80 to 72; Charles Community College, 88 to 68 and Prince George's Community College, 88 to 68.

In the first half of every game, Gallaudet was in contention—never behind by more than six points. In the Johns Hopkins game the Bison led at half-time by one point. "We have a good shooting team," said head coach Mike Rosenbaum, "but we don't have the big man to pull down rebounds." The Bison squad consists of eight veterans, including Darryl Wetzel and Kevin Smith, who averaged 22 and 20 points per game respectively last year. No one on the roster is taller than 6'-3".

ASP usually delivers such services on-site at the member school, utilizing Pre-College, Kendall or MSSD faculty and staff.

"We are very pleased with the results of this survey," said David Updegraff, administrator of the ASP project. "The responses were very positive and it gave us some good direction as to what we might consider looking into in the future."
